Few Offerings Will Be Found By American Tourists

Americans visiting London this sum-mr will find that the theaters have but little to offer them. Several of the musical comedies already have been produced in New York, and there are few notable plays among the English productions. "A Bill of Divorcement" continues at St. Martin's Theater, Somerset Maugham's "The Circle" has been successful at the Haymarket. Miss Peggy O'Neill is in the second year of 'Paddy the Next Best Thing" at the Savoy. Musical plays include "The Naughty Princess" at the Adelphi, "A Little Dutch Girl" at the Lyric and the American plays. "Love Among the Paint Pots," a comedy in an English setting, is at the Aldwych, where, due to the coal strike and transportation cuts, the curtain falls at 10:15 p. m. "Don Q," a Spanish romance, is at the Apollo. The Scottish Players are at the Kingsway in a Scotch comedy with an American title, "Hunky Dory." "Emma," a new comedy, is at St. James's, and Gerald Du Maurier's thrilling "Bulldog Drummond" at Wyndham's Theater. "The Savage and the Woman" is an American melodrama at the Lyceum; José Collins is in "Sibyl" at Daly's. "Count X" is at Garrick's; "A Night Out" at the Winter Garden; Ethel M. Dell's "The Knave of Diamonds" at the Globe. The Duke of York's has "The Tartan Peril," and the Strand a comedy, "The Safety Match." These plays, with a Lang's production of "The Wandering Jew" and Cyril Maud in "Grumpy"-"Othello" at the Court, London's Grand Guignol horror plays, the Shaw theater at Hampstead and the music halls, complete the program of London's sum-mer theatrical offerings.
